ST. CHARLES COUNTY BOY WINS HONOR AS NATIONAL DELEGATE

Wayne Short, 15, Student Here, One Of Four To Represent State
In 4-H Club Work At Washington, D. C.

An honor of state-wide distinction and merit is that which has been conferred upon Wayne Short, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Short of near Peruus this county by T. T. Martin, State 4-H Club leader, of Columbia, Mo. The award was announced here this morning in a letter to County Agent R. A. Langenbacher, from State Leader, Martin and entitles the local club member to a trip to Washington, D. C. as one of four Missouri state delegates at the National 4-H Club camp to be held there next June. Two boys and two girls will represent this state at the national meet.

Wayne, who is a pioneer club worker in this county, won the distinctive honor as a state representative on the merits of his accomplishments as a member of the Orchard Farm Bee Club. Six years ago he began work as a member of a pig club in which he remained for three years.

What the winner has won is unquestionably an honor but the achievement which merited that distinction is equally important. In six years of experience in club work he has realized a total of $1,613 on pigs and bees of which he netted above actual expenses a handsome sum of $821. Of that amount he preserved a bank account of $550 as a "nest egg" for his educational career, which he began this year in the local high school.

He is enrolled as a freshman and ranks as second highest in scholarship among the high school students

Wayne Short, of the St. Charles High School, who with a young man from St. Louis County is representing Missouri at the 4-H Club meeting at Washington, D. C.

This camp lasts until June 28. Wayne was selected as a state representative of the 4-H Clubs of Missouri on account of his excellent work.

RECORDS OF MISSOURI 4-H CLUB CHAMPIONS

Delegates to National Camp
Were Chosen for Their Achievements and Leadership

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Missouri was represented at the second national 4-H Club camp by Amelia Dunn of Buchanan County, Lottie T. Chiles of Jackson County; Wayne Short of St. Charles County, and Herbert Frick of St. Louis County.

Amelia Dunn is a freshman in the Junior College at St. Joseph. In all, she has completed five years of 4-H Club work, including three years in garment making, one year in home making and one year in meal preparation. During her 4-H Club experience, Amelia has been a county club style show champion, a member of the county champion club demonstration team, the president of her club for four years and vice president for one year, a local club leader for the last two years, president of a 4-H Club camp, a county club delegate to the Missouri State Fair, a Missouri Bankers' Association Club delegate to Junior Week at the Missouri College of Agriculture. As State leadership champion for 1927 she represented her State in the National 4-H Club leadership contest at the sixth National Club Congress in Chicago last December.

Girl Earned $119.

Lottie T. Chiles is a Junior in high school. She has been an active 4-H Club member for six years. During this period, she completed three projects in garment making and three projects in baby-beef club work, on which she cleared $119.51, and was awarded $98.83 in premiums. While doing her club work she made a total of seven exhibits, gave nine demonstrations of approved farm and home practices, and attended and took part in six achievement club programs. Miss Chiles has served as club song leader, club reporter and club secretary. As an achievement club champion, she represented Jackson County on the 4-H Club program at the Missouri State Fair, at Junior Week at the Missouri College of Agriculture, at the American Royal Livestock Show and at the sixth National Club Congress at Chicago in 1927. She has been a successful local leader for two years, and has the distinction of being the first 4-H Club member in Jackson County to become a full-fledged 4-H Club leader.

Averages $186 a Year.

Wayne Short is at present a freshman in high school. For six years he has been a "big wire" 4-H Club member. His club activities consisted of three projects in pig club work, one in grain judging, and two in bee club work, and he has now started on his seventh year of 4-H Club work. During six busy years, he made a total of $1442 at the cost of $821, leaving a net profit of $829, which was an average of $154.66 for each year in 4-H Club work. Wayne has been a regular exhibitor and a consistent winner at the St. Charles County Fair and at the Missouri State Fair, and as a county club delegate and achievement club champion, sent by the Missouri Bankers' Association, he was a member of the club demonstration team which ranked second in the State at Junior week at the Missouri College of Agriculture in 1927. He has been president of five clubs and secretary of two, has taken an active part in each annual county club camp and club achievement program. He has helped to secure new members, organized clubs and assisted the local club leaders.

39 States Represented.

Herbert Frick is a recent high school graduate. He has completed three years of 4-H Potato Club work and will continue as a member of the Potato Club. He has attended all club meetings, has helped to secure new club members, and to organize clubs in his home community. During his first year, he was club secretary, and he has been president of the club for the last two years. He is a 4-H Potato Club exhibitor and judge; he was a club delegate, sent by the Missouri Bankers' Association to Junior week at the Missouri College of Agriculture; and he was a member of the county champion 4-H demonstration team that ranked second at the Missouri State Fair in 1926.

The Missouri delegates to the camp here were accompanied by T. T. Martin, Missouri State club agent. Thirty-nine states were represented at the camp by delegates, chosen because of their superior achievements in some line of agriculture or home economics, and in leadership.

39 States Send 4-H Delegates To Washington

Ten Million Farm Boys and Girls Ought to Belong to Club

One hundred and fifty-six farm boys and girls from 39 States accepted Uncle Sam's invitation to participate in the second National 4-H club camp, held in Washington from June 21 to 26.

They were welcomed to the Capital on behalf of the United States Department of Agriculture by G. W. Warburton, Director of Extension Work in the department. He pointed out that already there are 629,000 4-H club boys and girls enrolled in the club, who are being trained for more efficient farmers and homemakers and better citizens.

"The 4-H club," he said, "gave rural young people an opportunity to meet together, play together, and work together. Officials of the department therefore consider it one of the most helpful agencies for the improvement of agricultural conditions and rural living."

Ten Millions Eligible.

Dr. Warburton directed attention to the realization of the importance of 4-H club activities by Congress, which made available additional appropriations from the Federal Treasury for further development of the organization through the 3,000 cooperative extension agents now working in counties throughout the United States. The present membership of 629,000, he pointed out, is very small when compared to some 10,000,000 farm boys and girls who are not enrolled for club work.

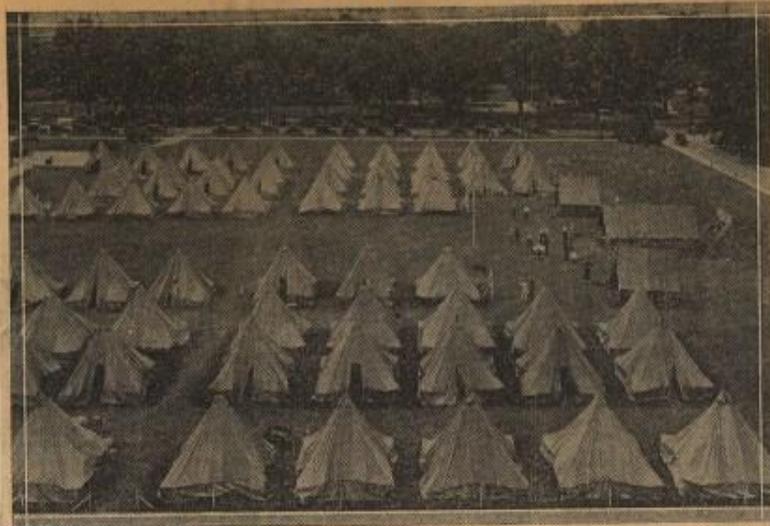

Dr. C. B. Smith, Chief of the Office of Cooperative Extension Work of the department, followed Dr. Warburton and discussed the historical significance of Washington.

Other speakers during the week included Hon. J. J. Tigert, United States Commissioner of Education; E. V. Wiley, nationally known agricultural writer who has traveled extensively in other lands, and William Tyler Page, Clerk of the House of Representatives, who outlined Congressional procedure.

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis was the principal speaker on the program that was broadcast Saturday evening from the auditorium of the National Press Club Building. Mentie Rippy, of Arkansas, and Mildred Bennett, of Minnesota, addressed their fellow club members who were listening-in in all parts of the country. Myrtle Lawton, a former 4-H club girl who is now at the close of her training in music, made her debut as a soloist.

Speaking at the annual 4-H banquet Monday evening, Edward E. Simonson, director of Science Service, expressed the opinion that agriculture is beginning "a boom that will give it rank with other great industries."

National 4-H Club Camp

TENTS PITCHED on the grounds of the Department of Agriculture to house delegates to the second National 4-H club camp, held in Washington June 21 to 26.

Visit Mount Vernon.

While encamped in Washington the farm boys and girls visited the White House, Capitol, Library of Congress and other government buildings. The itinerary also included a journey to Mount Vernon, where the club delegates took part in a wreath ceremony at the tomb of Washington.

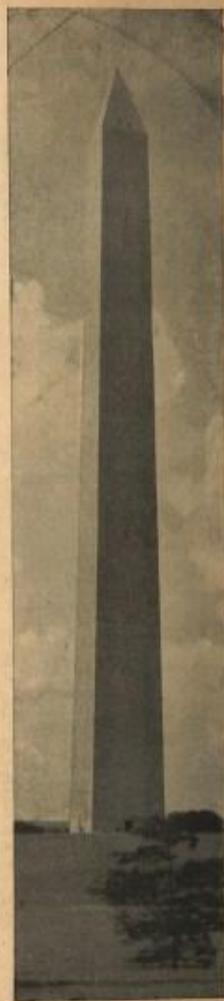

They also visited the animal husbandry and dairy experimental farms of the department at Beltsville, Md., 36 miles northeast of the Capital. Also the greenhouses in the Mall at Washington.

Four-H club activities were discussed at the numerous group conferences held. John Bradford of the Playground and Recreation Association of America, conducted the recreational periods. Campfire gatherings were conducted in the regular 4-H manner.

The junior farmers of America enjoyed their stay in Washington immensely, and they returned to their respective homes, and 4-H clubs filled with inspiration to carry on as never before.

THE U. S. CAPITOL, WASHINGTON, D. C.

Second National 4-H Club Camp

FROM the farms of forty states came boys and girls to attend the Second National 4-H Club Camp in Washington, D. C., June 21-26. They came, they saw, they conquered. Washington, and all that it stands for, became an inseparable part of their lives.

In their camp life, in their conferences and meetings, and on their educational tours, they gained inspiration and information which should enable them to be of influence for great good in their respective states, communities, and homes. They honored Washington and Washington honored them.

Each state was entitled to send two club boys and two club girls accompanied by two adult leaders. The total camp enrollment attained a total of more than 215 official representatives.

In the shadow of the massive Washington monument on the north the Department of Agriculture, some sixty brown tents, the quarters and the home of the club members and leaders during their busy stay in Washington. The high quality and conduct of the camp, excellent, thanks to the management of Camp Director George E. Farrell, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Mingle among the campers and you were at once impressed with their outstanding character and ability. Who could tell how many future presidents were among them? Or congressmen? Certain it is that many, if not all, are even now blazing trails of happiness and prosperity.

A Day in Camp

The bugle blows at six in the morning. If you are ambitious on Friday, you may arise earlier and participate in Dr. Bell's delightful bird tour. At 6:35 comes flag raising followed by swimming and setting-up exercises. Breakfast is next on the daily schedule. The group eats regularly—and how—at a restaurant on the famous Pennsylvania Avenue, a short walk from camp. Everybody attends assembly at nine o'clock in the auditorium of the National Museum. Singing, announcements, and a short worthwhile talk are in order with I. W. Hill of the U. S. Department of Agriculture presiding.

Among the speakers at the several assemblies are: C. W. Warburton, Director of Extension; C. B. Smith, Chief, Office of Co-operative Extension Work; W. M. Gilbert, Adm. Secretary, Carnegie Institute; Hon. J. J. Tigert, U. S. Commission of Education; E. V. Wiley, Traveler and Author; William Tyler Page, Clerk of the House of Representatives; Miss Harlean James, American Civic Association.

The club members' conference is an important part of every morning program. The boys and girls gather in small discussion groups, each in charge of an adviser, and talk over their problems. John Bradford, Playground Recreational Association of America, presents play methods to all the delegates. There are reports of 4-H committees. On the final day, for example, reports include: summary of group conferences, summary of goals for 4-H club work, recommendations for next year's National Club Encampment.

While the club members are in conference, their elders, the state leaders, also hold conferences. Some of the interesting committee reports are: pins, uniforms, standardization, songs, and plans for 1929.

Educational tours consume the rest of the daylight hours until supper time, and in the evening, recreation with Mr. Bradford, and the camp fire with its council ring, that is if it doesn't rain or something else doesn't interfere. The weather was rather dampish in Washington while we were there and did interfere once or twice.

Educational Tours

A caravan of eight big buses, accompanied by a guard of motorcycle police, transported the campers to many places of interest in and about Washington, D. C. Tourmaster R. A. Turner had a splendid program mapped out. Thursday, June 21, the government experiment farm at Beltsville was the attraction. This farm is devoted to better breeding and feeding work with live stock and poultry. The climax of the visit was the picnic supper featuring chicken and other home-grown products.

Friday forenoon the girls visited the Bureau of Home Economics, while the boys saw them make big guns at the navy yard. That afternoon every one went through the Bureau of Engraving and printing and saw them "make money" (paper) and stamps. From there they went to the Smithsonian Institute. The aircraft building contains all types of modern aeroplanes, both pleasure and war craft, and has on display the very ships which have made air history. Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis" hangs in the entrance to the Arts and Industries building. In this building the boys and girls saw one of the most complete collections in the world of transportation vehicles on land, air, and sea showing the development of the automobile, the bicycle, steam engine, aeroplanes, and modern ships and vessels. You could easily spend a day or a week wandering about in this massive museum and learn much.

The greenhouses of the Department of Agriculture were toured Saturday after the noon meal, on the way back to camp. In the cactus house are hundreds of varieties, every shape and description. In the citrus house grow luscious fruits, and there is found the original navel orange tree, the mother of navel oranges in the United States. Then there are the grape house and the flowerhouses. Several acres are under glass.

To Mount Vernon on Saturday afternoon. The club members visited the tomb of George Washington and paid their homage to the "father of our country" by depositing a wreath there. High on the beautiful banks of the Potomac, Mount Vernon commands a never-to-be-forgotten view of the countryside.

Dear Club Member:

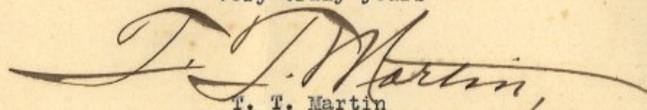

I appreciate your good letter of March 20 in reference to the club trip which you have merited to represent Missouri in the National 4-H Club Camp at Washington, D. C., next June.

You certainly have a just right to be proud of this achievement and I am sure that you will not be disappointed in your anticipations of a valuable trip and an enjoyable time from the time you leave home until the time you return. I am sure you will be in position to be much more useful in club work and will have a much better idea of what you want to do in this big world by having made this trip.

In looking over your entry for this trip, we were convinced here at the State Club Office that you had cooperated very thoroughly with Mr. Langenbacher, your county extension agent, and with Mr. Wilson and other local club leaders and the boys and girls in your community in doing a good piece of 4-H club work.

In behalf of the 4-H club staff, I wish to congratulate you upon this achievement.

Dear Wayne:

Mr. T. T. Martin, State Club Agent, just handed me your story about your club work in St. Charles County.

Mr. Martin tells me that you are one of the 4 winners of the state and will make the trip to Washington.

I certainly want to congratulate you on your fine success all of which is honestly earned and deserved but at the same time I cannot help but take a little secret pleasure in having seen you start out in this fine line of achievement.

I remember distinctly the little litter of Poland China pigs that you had as your first result of Pig Club work in St. Charles County.

I wish for you the best in every way and a continued success in your work.

Yours very truly,

THE FRIDAY CAMP FIRE

The camp fire on Friday, the 22nd, was sponsored by the third and fourth group divisions. Mr. Farrell and others read announcements and a few of the outside visitors were introduced, one of whom gave the camp a surprise by his appearance. This was Ford Morcor of Oklahoma, first winner of the Moses Leadership Trophy, in 1924. The program was then turned over to groups three and four, with Mr. Gibbs of New Hampshire as Master of Ceremonies. The fire was lighted and the announcement was made that the program would consist of a complete 4-H meeting. Gerald Smith of Ohio acted as president and Ina Pae Paul of Iowa, as secretary. The meeting started with the singing of two club songs, namely, the "Hello!" song and "O! Me! O! My!". The club plodge was then repeated and the roll call followed. Next came the report of the last meeting and a member of a committee told of future business. A demonstration was given next by Howard S. Putnam of New Hampshire, on forestry. Then more songs were sung. Next, a flute and violin duet was given by William Smith of Ohio and Miss Marion McTaggart of West Virginia. Then a very interesting 4-H club initiation was enacted with Miss Warren acting as the new members. A game was played with a battle between divisions three and four, using paper bags as arms of war. The program was then turned over to Mr. Ingalls of Vermont. Anna B. Keyser of Virginia told an Indian legend and then followed the great candle lighting ceremony of the Omaha's with all of the delegates participating. After this impressive ceremony, taps were sung (Dey is Done) and the program was ended.

three Senators, three Representatives and six citizens chosen by Congress. It also provided for a permanent Secretary to be elected by the Regents. This officer administers the Institution. He is always chosen from among America's foremost scientists.

To Discover
and Publish
New Facts

After James Smithson, the greatest name in Smithsonian history is that of Joseph Henry. As first Secretary, Henry made it an institution for the discovery of knowledge by research and exploration, and for the spread of knowledge by publication and world-wide exchanges. Under him and his aids the Smithsonian guided the scientific development of this continent. To the railway surveys and military expeditions then opening up the Far West, it allotted money and instruments and men for the collection of animals and plants, the study of the Indians and their past, for geological investigations, and to make magnetic surveys. It organized a country-wide weather service numbering 600 volunteer observers, aided astronomical expeditions to South America, and other expeditions to the regions of the North Pole. It supplied American science with the first great agency for free publication of technical results, thus "opening a new era in the history of American science." It established the principle of world-wide free distribution of scientific results and became the channel for such distribution. It spurred the growth of American libraries by the first study of their resources, and began the collection of what is now the foremost scientific library in America. It gave to American science a high and generous ideal.

80 Years of Achievement

Along such lines the Smithsonian has labored for 80 years. It has taken part in nearly 1500 exploring expeditions covering the globe. It has collaborated in 42 expositions here and abroad. It has distributed to museums and educational institutions over a million specimens. It answers an average of 8000 scientific questions year by letter. Its scientific publications covering results of researches and explorations total nearly 10,000 pages annually.

Its second secretary, Professor S. F. Baird, who was a leader in the study of birds, reptiles and fishes, saved from extinction the cod, herring, and other fisheries of the Atlantic seaboard; its third secretary, Professor S. P. Langley, conducted the investigations that made aviation a science; its fourth secretary, Dr. Charles D. Walcott, discovered proof of the existence of life on earth millions of years earlier than had been thought; at present the Acting Secretary, Dr. Charles G. Abbot, is bringing to a climax the work of 30 years on the variation of the sun.

Out of Smithsonian activities have grown nine Government bureaus. They are the Weather Bureau, Bureau of Fisheries, National Museum, Bureau of American Ethnology, International Exchanges, National Zoological Park, Astrophysical Observatory, National Gallery of Art, and the U. S. Bureau of the International Catalogue of Scientific Literature.

30 Expeditions
in 1927

Because these bureaus grew out of its activities, the Institution is still charged with the administration of the last seven

WAYNE SHORT TELLS OF TRIP TO WASHINGTON

St. Charles boy Who Won Honors in Boys' Club Work Appreciated
His Trip to National Capital.

The following is a letter written by Wayne Short, a St. Charles boy who attended the National Boys' Club Convention held in Washington, D. C. recently:

Wayne Short, member of the Orchard Farm 4-H Club, who was named as a delegate from this state to the National 4-H Club encampment at Washington, D. C. for the week of June 19-24, gives a detailed account of his journey from St. Charles to the nation's capital and return. The story as he has written it is as follows:

Our train, the B. & O. National Limited, left the station in St. Louis at 12 o'clock noon on Tuesday. We immediately ate our luncheon and spent the next few hours getting acquainted. We spent most of the day and the next morning in the observation car where we saw the scenery of the different states. The mountains of West Virginia proved to be very beautiful being the first I had ever seen. The town of Harper's Ferry with the Potomac winding through it and the mountains as a back ground was one of the most beautiful places I have ever seen. We arrived in Washington at 12:30 p. m. and immediately went to our camp. After registering and putting our tent in order we spent most of the day getting acquainted with those from other states. As we were very tired from the trip we retired early.

The next morning we were awakened at six and immediately went swimming, the pool being near the camp on the opposite side of Washington Monument. At 9 o'clock we assembled in the auditorium of the New National Museum. Mr. C. W. Warburton, the Director of Extension Work, gave an address of welcome and Dr. C. B. Smith, chief of Cooperative Extension Work, gave an address about Washington and its historical points. Mr. Gilbert of the Carnegie Institute also gave an interesting talk in which he told the work of that institution. The state delegations were then introduced and announcements were made, one of which stated that radio try-outs would be held. Among the five boys whose voices would be tried was myself. We went to an agriculture building and our voices were tried out. However, I was beaten by a boy from Arkansas but nevertheless I was very happy to think that I was one of the first five. After this we had luncheon and the busses came and we were taken to the Baltaville farm in Baltaville, Maryland. This farm is for government experimentations and all afternoon we were shown all about the different experiments. These experiments are made on all farm animals so that bulletins may be published to help the farmer by teaching him the best methods of feeding and caring for his stock. This certainly proved to be very interesting and as a conclusion a delightful chicken dinner was served. We arrived home from Baltaville at 8 o'clock and camp fire immediately began. The camp had before been divided into eight groups and groups 1 and 2 were the sponsors of this program. A very interesting program was carried out in the old Indian fashion and at 10 o'clock the program was over and taps were blown.

Friday morning we were awakened at 5:30 and started in the rain on a bird tour. We didn't find many birds but we had an interesting hike nevertheless. At nine assembly began and we were addressed by Hon. J. J. Tigert of the Commission of Education who gave an interesting talk. Then club members conference was held and we discussed the problems of leadership until 11:30. At that time busses took us to the Navy yard where we saw how guns were made etc. After luncheon we visited the Bureau of Printing and Engraving where we saw how all the money and stamps are made. We then visited the Smithsonian Institute where we saw Col. Lindbergh's plane and many other very interesting things. After supper a recreation period was held and games were played until eight when campfire began. This time it was sponsored by groups 3 and 4 and group 3 was the one in which I was a member. Our program consisted of a typical 4-H club meeting and to end the program a candle ceremony of the Omaha's was held.

The next day at nine assembly began and we were addressed by E. V. Wilcox, an author, who told us about agriculture in other lands. Another conference was then held dealing with the principals of 4-H club service. After lunch we visited the department group houses where many interesting plants were seen. The busses then took us to Mount Vernon where we visited Washington's tomb and his home which proved to be a very interesting place indeed. After supper we went to the press club auditorium from which the radio program was broadcast between the hours of 8 and 9. After this program we were scheduled to have campfire but it was postponed because of rain.

On Sunday at nine we went to Church at Washington Cathedral in which Woodrow Wilson and Admiral Dewey are buried. After lunch the bus took us to the Arlington Farm. This is a farm at which experiments on grasses, roses, grains, and other plants are made. We then visited the Arlington Cemetery. A wreath was placed on the tomb of the unknown soldier by two club members. We also visited the Custis-Lee Mansion and the memorial amphitheatre. Maj. Gen. J. A. Lejeune of the Marine Corps addressed us and we had the pleasure of shaking hands with him later. After supper another recreation period was held but campfire was again postponed on account of rain.

On Monday at assembly we were addressed by Wm. Tyler Page, author of the Americans Creed and also the clerk of the house who gave a very interesting talk. Club conference was then held and from 11:00 to 11:30 a radio program was given over W. R. C. by the club members. From 11:30 into 1:00 we visited the White House where we saw the beautiful East, Red, Green and Blue rooms and others. After luncheon we visited the capitol building and it proved to be one of the most beautiful I have ever seen. At 6:30 we were taken to the City Club where a banquet was held. We were addressed by Dr. E. E. Blosson, Director of Science Service, who told us about the interesting science work. The campfire for that evening was again called off because of rain.

On Tuesday at Assembly we were addressed by Miss Harlean James of the Civic Assn. who spoke on the planning as a mark of progress. The final conference was then held in which we summarized the discussions of the week. At 11:30 we visited Washington's Monument. The view from its top was very beautiful and all the city could be seen. After luncheon we visited the Corcoran Art gallery where we saw many beautiful works of art. From there we went to the Pan-American buildings where all the ministers and Ambassadors of the various American meet. We then went to the Lincoln Memorial erected to that great emancipator. After supper a short recreation period was held and at 7:30 the bus took us to the Library of Congress. This building with its numerous paintings and brilliant lights was certainly one of the

ROTARY CLUB TODAY

Wayne Short, appointed as one of two delegates to represent the Four-H clubs of Missouri was guest of the Rotarians at their luncheon today noon. Wayne made a talk greatly appreciated by the club. The Rotarians are paying his expenses to Washington.

most beautiful buildings in the city. At nine the final camp fire was held and as usual it was raining but not enough for postponement. This program was sponsored by the leaders and this final meeting was very sad indeed. We were given a half-hour in which to say good-bye and it surely was hard to part from those with whom we had such a good time.

This closed the official schedule but the Missouri group stayed one more day in Washington. On Wednesday from 10 until 2:30 we went on a boat excursion down the Potomac with a few other state groups. We went to a small town in Maryland called Marshal Hall and this trip was certainly enjoyed. At 3:00 our Missouri group visited Washington Monument again and this time walked down the stairs. We also went to the Smithsonian again for one can stay there a week and never see it all. That evening we went to a theatre and at 11:47 p. m. our train left that wonderful city. The Mo. group being the last delegation to leave. We arrived in Cincinnati at 6:05 p. m. and stayed there four hours. In that time we went to another theatre. The train left at 10:30 p. m. and we arrived home in St. Louis at seven the next morning.

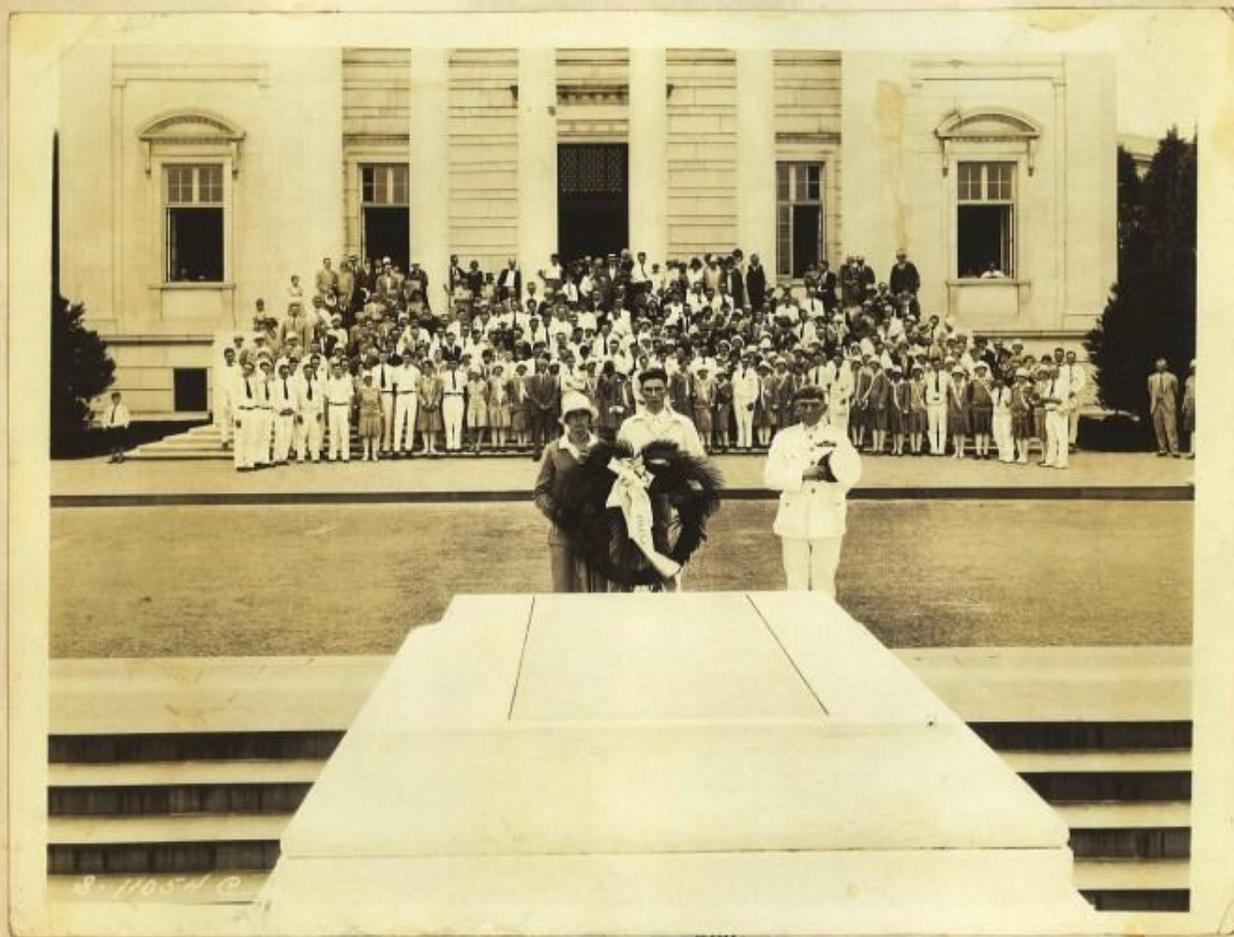

This ended the trip which is one I will never forget and which proved to me that we have a capital city to be proud of.

I certainly was happy to be a member of the Mo. delegation and I feel very proud to say that Mo. had one of the most popular groups there. We had the best girl singer of the whole group and she was honored by being put in front of the microphones when we broadcasted. She also responded whenever leaders were needed. The other girl also sang on both occasions and was honored by a leader from Hawaii who presented four leis to U. S. club members and this Missouri girl received the finest of the four. Also our state leader, Mr. Martin was one of the busiest men in Washington and the most popular state leader too. This was proved when in Assembly on the last day the delegations gave him many rousing cheers. As for "pep" Missouri was always among the first even though there were many "Peppy" delegations.

I certainly want to thank the Rotary Club for the kind way in which they paid my expenses on this trip and I can assure them that I enjoyed every minute of it.

This is just a brief outline of what I saw but space does not permit to tell more. I certainly enjoyed the never-to-be-forgotten trip and I hope that in the future St. Charles County may send many more delegates to our wonderful capitol city.
